

From a very young age Audree Johnson was destined to be a radio broadcaster, born in the small town of Winter Haven, Florida, her parents knew from a young age, one of her gifts was communicating unapologetically. It wasn't uncommon that they would receive calls from her teachers for her excessive 'storytelling,' So much so that she has won State competitions for speaking.

This storytelling led her to connect with radio broadcasting as a communications student at Oakwood College in the mid-1990s. She was hired as a programming assistant, weather girl, and random duties as assigned. Her vast knowledge of the station allowed her eventually to work her way up to co-hosting Morning Joy, the station's signature morning show.

Shortly after graduation, while working with State Farm Insurance as a claims adjuster, because of her love for radio, she maintained her connection with WOCG as the volunteer host of Sunday Morning Inspiration, playing just about any type of gospel music that she wanted. Due to the station's more conservative format, that level of freedom was a perk.

In 2004, Audree was determined to get back into the field of communications on a more permanent level and worked for WAFF 48 as a Marketing Assistant, while also managing bands, producers, and artists.

On December 1, 2017, Audree returned to her alma mater's station, WJOU-FM after almost three years at WAY-FM, a nationwide network of contemporary Christian stations that has a local affiliate in the Huntsville metro area.

Engaging and doing life with people has been one of the greatest blessings that her journey through communications has afforded her. As the former General Manager of WJOU she led a team to inspire, uplift and encourage listeners to follow Jesus globally!

On November 1, 2023, she entered a new role as the Vice President of Strategic Communications for The Moriah Group. The Moriah Group is passionate about helping philanthropy to increase their commitment to making focused, equitable investments, and developing youth-serving systems and organizations to refine their practices to cultivate environments in which young people can thrive.

With over 28 years of communications experience, Audree is passionate about people, leadership, and successful businesses. She is especially inspired to help young people take their careers – and themselves – to unprecedented levels, while developing a relationship with Jesus. She considers her biggest blessing to be assigned the awesome responsibility of motherhood. You will often find Audree and her 15-year-old son, Jadon, in a gym, teaching children's sabbath school and sharing jokes and random recipes.

Audree's favorite book in the bible is Psalm 139, her favorite text is Psalm 139 verse 1 'You have searched me, LORD, and you know me. O LORD, you have examined my heart and know everything about me.' She counts it as a privilege to be fully known and loved by the Creator of the universe, but she is even more humbled that He trusts her to share her gifts through the medium of communications and speaking.
